DEDICATION

The Stebbins portion of this genealogy I wish to dedicate to the memory of those pioneer forefathers who suffered, and bled and died that we, their descendants of today might have a more free and bountiful life. By this dedication may the pioneer courage of those who have passed this way before be an incentive and a guide for future generations to shape lofty aims and noble goals in life. May our appreciation for the liberty we now enjoy be shown by an honor and a reverence toward our pioneer forefathers.

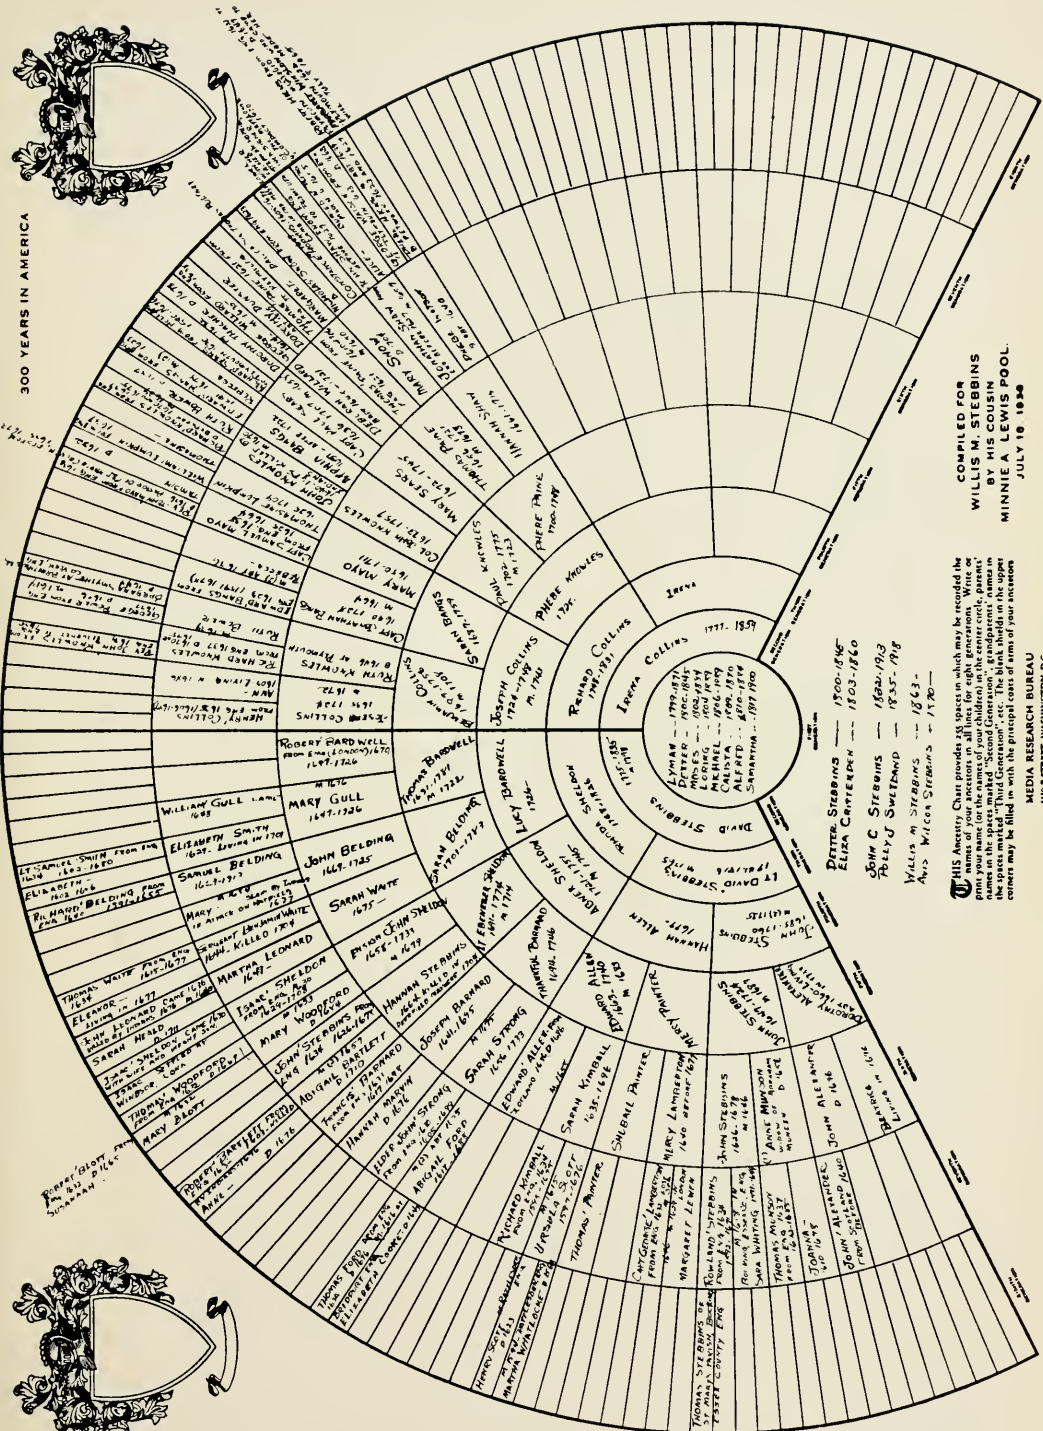

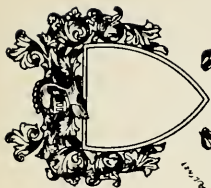

The Swetland portion of this genealogy, I dedicate to my mother, Polly J. Swetland Stebbins. To her I owe much for the good training in early life that has been a strong foundation for future building, for the guidance, help and comfort that she gave me during those first early years on the farm, and for all the love, devotion, sympathy and understanding of later years—I wish to repay in this crude but enduring manner.

The Wilcox portion of this genealogy I dedicate to my loving wife, Avis Wilcox Stebbins, who has labored by my side for nearly a half century, and who has been a splendid homemaker and a loving mother to her family.

And to her mother, Olivia Cheney Wilcox, whom I have been proud to call my mother-in-law, I dedicate the Cheney portion. The fine Christian spirit and encouraging ways of Mother Wilcox were an incentive to me to move onward and upward when I started anew in a lonesome frontier town half a hundred years ago. I would not want to blot from my memory the many deeds of kindness she passed to all those with whom she came in contact.

Colonial Stebbins home of George Sheldon, taken in 1909 at Deerfield, Mass. George Sheldon and Willis Merrill Stebbins in the foreground. House was built in 1772 by Colonel Joseph Stebbins, grandfather of George Sheldon. The house is still standing and well preserved.

FOREWORD BY THE COMPILER

When a young lad in school, I often thought and wondered who and what kind of people my grandparents were. However, as all of them had died before I was born, with the exception of Grandfather Swetland, who died in 1865, when I was two years old, I had no one of the older generations to ask questions to satisfy my curiosity regarding my ancestry. Some of my great uncles and aunts were still living and when I asked questions about my ancestry they were evasive or able to give very little information of any value.

When I left home in 1884, at the age of twenty-one to settle in Nebraska, I did not know when I would go back to the old home again. One day, alone, I went to the old Waits Corners Cemetery and there in my diary, which I kept, I took down the names of my great grandfather and grandmother, David and Irena Collins Stebbins, my grandparents, Dexter and Eliza Crittenden Stebbins; and some other members of the family buried there, in the hopes that some day I might be able to trace back to the first Stebbins grandparents that had come to this country.

In 1898, my own family and I visited the old home at Sherman, New York. My father and mother were still living on the old home place and when several of the older members of the family were together in a group, I asked them some questions regarding our early ancestors. I recall that Carlos Stebbins, a cousin of my father, said he had a paper down at his home that told all about the Stebbins family, where they came from and he said I could get this information from that paper. I visited the home of Carlos Stebbins and found this paper to be a copy of a paper published in Greenfield, Massachusetts. It contained a complete list of the Stebbins family from David and Irena, who are buried at Waits Corners, N. Y., back to Rowland Stebbins, the first immigrant ancestor, who came from England to America in 1634. This article had been prepared by George Sheldon of Deerfield, Massachusetts and I learned from this article that he had published a history of Deerfield in two volumes in which appeared the Stebbins genealogy along with the stories of many other pioneer families of Deerfield.

When I reached home from our trip, I wrote George Sheldon at Deerfield and he told me where I could secure these books which he had written and published in 1895. From these two volumes, "History of Deerfield," I gathered much information regarding the history of our family. In 1909, I visited Deerfield and met George Sheldon, the author of the Deerfield history. He was then 90 years of age, spry, active and possessed one of the keenest minds I have ever known.

GENEALOGY OF THE STEBBINS FAMILY

He invited me to spend an evening with him and Mrs. Sheldon and the information I gathered that evening from him was like getting it from an encyclopedia. He told me his thoughts often went back to his childhood days and that he distinctly remembered when his mother carried him in her arms on the streets and to visit neighbors. He was certain that he could remember many things that occurred when he was three years old. He told me about the condition of the Connecticut valley around Deerfield when the white men first bought it from the Indians. The Indians had kept the valley free of timber and cultivated it and raised corn and tobacco. This was a paradise for the early settlers of our country to find a place like that where the primeval forest was already cleared. He told me about the fort that was first built there and which protected the early settlers from the French and Indians. Then he showed me the many nice markers along the street that were there to mark the home lots of the early settlers. He showed me where my grandparent, John Stebbins III, had lived when his house was burned and he, his wife and six children were carried captives to Canada by the Indians on that cold winter night of February 29, 1704. I expressed my desire that a marker be secured to mark that sight the same as the others were marked. He told me to think it over and see if I could not have a monument erected there to commemorate that spot. After my return home, I corresponded with Mr. Sheldon and we decided to erect the monument which stands there today with the following inscription:

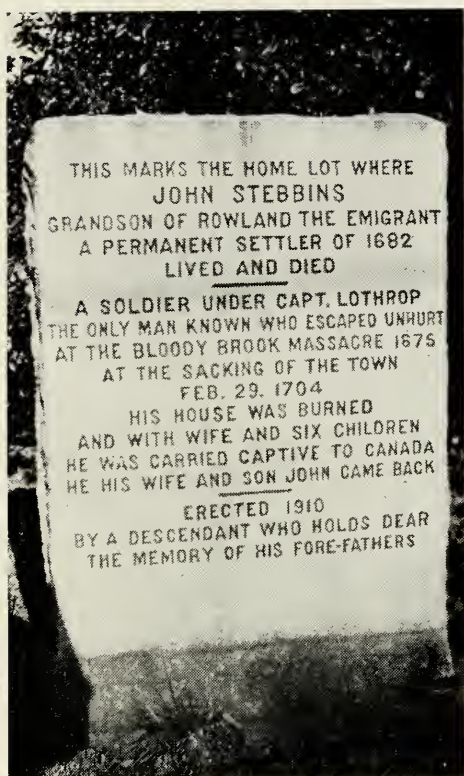

THIS MARKS THE HOME LOT WHERE

AND KINDRED LINES

JOHN STEBBINS MONUMENT, DEERFIELD, MASS.

I was asked to go back to the dedication of this monument in 1911, but as it was inconvenient for me to do so, I corresponded with Mrs. Sherman I. Pool of Waverly, Iowa and she agreed to go back to represent me at this unveiling. Mrs. Pool, whose mother was a Stebbins, went to Deerfield and the records of the Pocumtuck Valley Memorial Association, (Volume V, 1905-1911) of which Mr. Sheldon was president, give an account of the erection of the monument and the address which Mrs. Pool and others made that day.

I have visited Deerfield, Northampton and Springfield several times since then. Always, I have been deeply interested to learn all I could about those early ancestors. About 1909, I learned of the book published by Dr. Daniel Stebbins of Northampton, in which he told of the grave of Rowland Stebbins at Northampton, Massachusetts, and gave an account of finding this grave after the body had lain there 179 years in an unmarked grave. It occurred to me that there should be a permanent marker on that grave now that we knew its location. Dr. Stebbins had erected a nice marker about 1850 but it was becoming badly weatherbeaten and I feared that in a few more years the inscription would be entirely illegible. I was eager that the grave should be marked with a modern marker of lasting durability. I talked about this to several members of the family but none of them offered to help so I decided to replace the old marker with a new one and that the old marker should be placed near the base of the one to be erected. In October 1938, I had Brown, Stevens & Fifield of Northampton erect a Scotch granite marker at this grave. On the marker is a bronze tablet with the following inscription:

In Memory Of
ROWLAND STEBBINS
Son of Thomas
Born Bocking, England, 1592
Married Sara Whiting, Nov. 30, 1618
Came to Roxbury, Mass. 1634
Settled at Springfield, Mass., 1639
Died in Northampton, Mass., Dec. 14, 1671
Erected 1938 by Willis M. Stebbins,
Gothenburg, Nebr., 9th generation from Rowland.

My entire aim as the donor of this monument has been to perpetuate the memory of the first pioneer Stebbins who came to America and to make a lasting and permanent record available to future generations, who, I hope will get as much thrill and pride from a knowledge of their ancestors as I have.

To Mr. and Mrs. Sherman Ira Pool of Waverly, Iowa; to Gratia Thornton of Santa Barbara, California; to Emmet O. Stebbins of Meadville, Pennsylvania; to Mrs. Fannie Emery Morgan of Los Angeles, California; to G. Lavern Stebbins of North Clymer, New York; to James McCallum, Superintendent of Cemeteries at Northampton, Massachusetts, and to all others who assisted me in compiling this work, I am deeply grateful.

IMMIGRANT ANCESTRAL RECORDS I HAVE BEEN ABLE TO SECURE

It has been very interesting to search for what information we could gather regarding some of these immigrant ancestors and we will give what information we can about them.

We find they all came from England to America with the exception of John Alexander and Edward Allen, who came from Scotland. It will be noticed that in the various towns where they settled most of them became active citizens and occupied responsible positions in the community and in the church.

Robert Bartlett, of Thomas Hooker's company who came in 1632, went to Hartford, 1636, where he was the first selectman of Hartford, 1640; went to Northampton, 1653, and was the first selectman of that town 1653-54. He was killed by Indians in King Phillip's war, 1676. His name is among the 102 names on the Founders of History monument at Hartford, Conn.

Thomas Munson came to Hartford, 1673. Received a grant of land for his services in the Pequot war, 1637. Representative to the Colonial assembly, 27 sessions. Captain of New Haven forces in King Phillip's war.

Elder John Strong came to Dorchester, 1635. Settled at Taunton, 1645. Deputy from there to the general court at Plymouth, 1641 to 1645. Was appointed with four others to superintend the settlement at Windsor, Conn., 1646, one of the founders of Northampton where he was ordained the first ruling elder of the First church. Was a leading man in the town.

Lt. Samuel Smith, who came to Watertown, Mass., 1634 and took up a homestead at Wethersfield, Conn., 1634-5, was one of the most useful men of his time. He built and was part owner of the first ship built in his Connecticut colony. Was deputy to the general court 1637-1646; several times selectman; removed to Hadley, Mass., 1659, where he held important offices in church and state. Deputy to the general court of Massachusetts Bay colony 1661 to 1673. Magistrate; commissioner to the Mohawks, 1667. In Hadley, lieutenant of Hadley troop, 1661 to 1678. One of a committee "appointed to lay out the plantation of Squakheag (Northfield, Mass.), admit inhabitants, grant lands, and order the prudentials of the village."

Thomas Woodford came to Roxbury, Mass., 1632, where he was steward of the church from 1632 until he went with Thomas Hooker to found Hartford, Conn., 1636.

AND KINDRED LINES

Thomas Ford came in "the good ship Mary and John" to Dorchester, 1630, where he was a member of the town governing board in 1633. Proprietor at Windsor, Conn., 1636. Representative to general court many times between 1638 and 1654. "Member of the committee which sat with magistrates before government was organized," 1638-9. Judge Henry N. Blake says, "Six presidents of the United States were descended from Thomas Ford."

Capt. George Lamberton, one of the earliest settlers at New Haven, Conn., was a member of the general court, 1640. Deputy to New Haven, 1644. Master of "The Phantom Ship" which sailed from New Haven, 1646, and was lost at sea with all on board. The story is told in early New Haven history and in Longfellow's poem, "The Phantom Ship."

Robert Bardwell of Hadley, Mass., was "an old Indian fighter" and carried dispatches from Boston to Hadley on the Connecticut river in King Phillip's war, 1675. He was a soldier in the famous "swamp fight" when the power of the Narragansetts was broken, Dec. 19, 1675. He was a sergeant under Capt. Turner in 1676 and was stationed at Hatfield with 44 men under him, and was in the Falls fight. No wonder he was brave and a "fighter" for he came of brave fighting ancestors, the Bardwells, who were in Bardwell parish, Suffolk county, England, as early as the time of William the Conqueror. Sir William Bardwell, a celebrated soldier whose effigy still adorns the window of the parish church, died in 1634, in possession of Bardwell manor. In 1914, a framed picture of "Sir William de Bardewell," copied from this stained glass window of Bardwell church in Bardwell, England, the picture in the window dating back to 1421, was presented to Memorial hall, the colonial museum of Deerfield, by descendants of Robert Bardwell of Hatfield, whose ancestor was this Sir William de Bardewell. The Bardwell coat-of-arms indicates warlike proclivities.

Richard Belding, baptized at Kippas, England, 1591, was an original settler at Wethersfield, Conn., 1640. A large land owner. He was the second son of Sir Francis Bayldon and his second wife, Margaret Goodricke, who were both of distinguished ancestry; the Bayldons (or Beldings) tracing back to 1150 or earlier and Margaret Goodricke's mother were of royal descent traced with certainty to King Alfred the Great. Margaret Goodricke was fifth in line of descent from William Goodricke, brother of Thomas Goodricke, bishop of Ely and Lord Chancellor in the time of Edward VI.

In the Indian attack on Hatfield in September 1677, the wife of Samuel (2) Belding, the son of Robert (1) Belding, was slain and Sergeant Benjamin (2) Waite's house was burned and his wife and three small children carried captive to Canada. Here another daughter was born, whom she named "Canada Waite." Sergeant Benjamin Waite, who was an Indian scout and a brave and hardy man, after strenuous efforts succeeded in bringing the captives back, and his little two-year old daughter, Sarah, who was one of the captives, later married John (3) Belding, who was eight years old when his mother was killed in the Indian attack.

Sergeant Benjamin Waite served through King Phillip's war 1675-6, but lost his life in Queen Anne's war, when with a rescue party from Hatfield, in pursuit of the French and Indians after the massacre at Deerfield, 1704, he was killed by the Indians in a skirmish at Deerfield meadows. He is called "the hero of the Connecticut valley," and many of the noted dwellers in that valley today are proud to state that "the blood of Sergeant Benjamin Waite flows in their veins."

John (1) Leonard, the father-in-law of Sergeant Benjamin Waite, was killed in King Phillip's war 1676. He was one of the earliest settlers at Springfield, 1636.

The two immigrant ancestors from Scotland were John Alexander, who settled at Windsor before 1640, and Edward Allyn (or Allen) who settled at Ipswich, 1636. He had been a soldier under Cromwell. Removed to Suffield, Conn., 1678, where he and his three sons each had a grant of land. His son Corporal Edward (2) Allen was selectman at Suffield 1692-3 and Edward's son was surveyor of highways, 1682-3, selectman, 1683-1698, Tythingman, 1694. (This was a church office.)

Corporal Edward (2) Allen removed to Deerfield where he was town clerk, 1704-1712, and for many years clerk of the market. The Allen coat-of-arms is a crusader's cross in gold on a sable field. Its motto reads: "Bravely he bears his cross."

Stebbins Genealogy

ROWLAND STEBBINS (1)

Rowland Stebbins, b. in Bocking, Essex county, England, 1592, came from England in the ship "Francis," with wife and four children. Landed at Boston, and settled at Roxbury, Mass., 1634. The records of his baptism: "Rowland, s. of Thomas, baptised Nov. 5, 1592," and of his marriage to Sara Whiting, Nov. 30, 1618, inscribed in Latin, are still to be seen on the old parish registers in ancient St. Mary's church in Bocking, England.

The name Stebbins, or Stebbing, as it was written in the Domesday Book (1080-1086, A. D.) was first borne by John de Stebbing, a younger son of the Ferrers family, the first of whom came from Normandy with William the Conqueror, who appointed Henry de Ferrieres one of the commissioners to make the "Great Survey of the Realm," from which was compiled the Domesday Book. Henry de Ferrieres claimed the parish of Stebbing.

His son, Robert de Ferrieres, was created the first Earl of Derby by King Stephen. The fifth Earl of Derby, William de Ferrieres, accompanied King Richard the Lion-Heart to the Holy Land where he lost his life at the siege of Acre, 1191. The Stebbins coat of arms indicates a crusader.

His son, William de Ferrers, sixth Earl of Derby, was one of the four nobles who carried the canopy over the head of King Richard I at his second coronation after his return from captivity, and also took part in the coronation of King John, 1199, and of King Henry III in 1216.

During the reign of King John, this younger son of the Earl of Derby, John de Stebbing, held the Manor of Stebbing, most ancient manor house with a moat, now known as Porters Hall, still stands on the road to Braintree in Essex county; surrounded by the Stebbing park in the Parish of Stebbing. As Rowland Stebbins was born within five miles of this old Manor house, it would indicate that his ancestors of the name Stebbins had been there since 1199, over 400 years.

Rowland Stebbins (1) was an intimate friend of William Pyncheon, the founder of Springfield, Mass., who came from the same place in England, so in 1639 he removed from Roxbury to Springfield and later he and his son John were among the founders of Northampton, Mass., where Rowland Stebbins died, December 14, 1671.

He was a selectman of Northampton—the highest New England town office. In 1672-3 he was one of the contributors to the Harvard College. He is buried in the Bridge Street Cemetery at Northampton.

JOHN STEBBINS (3)

John Stebbins, son of John and Anne Munden Stebbins, b. Jan. 28, 1647 at Springfield, Massachusetts, d. Dec. 19, 1724 at Deerfield, Mass., m. about 1683 at Boston to Dorothy Alexander whose grandfather, John Alexander, came from Scotland before 1640. She was b. in 1660 and was still living at Newton, Mass. in 1733.

CHILDREN:

- (4) John, b. 1685, d. Sept. 7, 1760, m. Hannah Allen. Returned to Deerfield.
- (4) Abigail, b. Jan. 4, 1684, m. Jaques Desnoions or DeNoyans. In Canada.

- (4) Joseph, b. April 12, 1699, m. Mary Samssoucy. In Canada.

John Stebbins was one of the founders of Deerfield, Mass., drew a house lot there in 1671. Served in King Phillip's war, 1675-6. He was one of only four men who escaped from the Bloody Brook massacre in September 1675, when Capt. Lothrop and all the rest of his company—"young men, the flower of Essex county," were slain by the Indians in ambush. His name is among those engraved on the Bloody Brook monument which marks this spot at South Deerfield, Mass. The second day after this massacre John Stebbins enlisted again under Capt. Moseley and fought Indians until the close of King Phillip's war. In March, 1700, he was "chosen member of the school committee."

In Queen Anne's war in the Deerfield massacre of Febr. 29, 1704, the house of this same John Stebbins was burned by the French and Indians, and he, his wife, Dorothy Alexander, and their six children were captured and carried to Canada, where they were separated and taken to different places. Two years later he, his wife and one child, John—all they could find—were redeemed and returned to Deerfield by Ensign John Sheldon, whose wife, Hannah Stebbins, and their babe had been killed in their home—ever after known as "the old Indian house"—and four of his children taken captive to Canada. The hatchet-scarred door of the old Indian house—which stood for 144 years before it was torn down—is the chief object of interest in the noted Colonial museum at Deerfield, which is visited by thousands every year. The Indian house, and the Indian house elm tree are on the seal of the town of Deerfield.

From this point in our genealogy we will give as complete records as we can of each of the children of David and Irena Collins Stebbins and their descendants.

The above children were all born at Conway, Mass. except Samantha who was born at Middlesex, Yates County, New York.

Lyman was an early settler at Galena, Illinois.

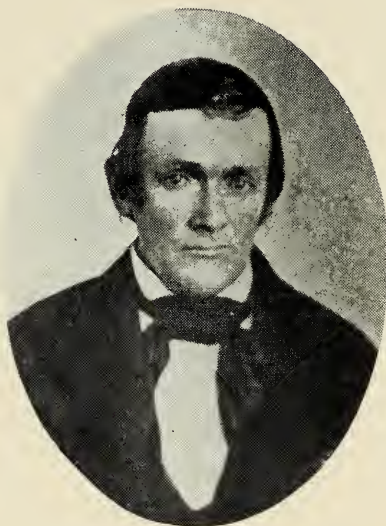

Michæl an early settler at Reading, Michigan.

Alfred located at Bellevue, Ohio.

David (6) and Irena with Dexter, Moses, Loring, Calista and Samantha moved to Middlesex, Yates County, New York and then all came to Sherman, Chautauqua County, New York, where they all located near Waits Corners Cemetery. About 40 years ago the descendants of those living around Waits Corners organized a Stebbins family reunion and since then have each year held a reunion in or near Sherman. Usually present, sixty to a hundred. This genealogy should be of special interest to all who have attended these reunions as well as all the descendants of David and Irena Collins Stebbins.

MINNIE ALICE LEWIS (9)

Minnie Alice Lewis, daughter of James S. Lewis and Harriet A. Stebbins Lewis, was b. in Apple River, Illinois, Oct. 27, 1866 and d. Oct. 18, 1939 at Waverly, Iowa. Interred at Townsend Cemetery, Stockton, Ill. m. Nov. 24, 1898 to Sherman Ira Pool, b. May 20, 1864 at Upper Sandusky, Ohio, son of Ira Pool and Lucy Ann Eggleston. Mrs. Pool was a member of the Order of the Crown, Mayflower Descendants, Old Plymouth Colony Descendants, Daughters of Founders and Patriots of America, Daughters of the American Revolution, Magna Charta Dames, The Boston Branch Dickensian Fellowship, and the Pocumtuck Valley Memorial Association of Deerfield, Mass.

Mrs. Pool traced 53 lines of her New England ancestry from herself back to the founder of each in America—the immigrant ancestors, most of whom came from England between 1628 and 1636. She was of the ninth or tenth generation in America from these forefathers who were among the founders of our country.

Minnie A. Lewis Pool was a teacher, writer, and genealogical student, author of the Odell genealogy and other articles. From 1913 until 1917 she was State Historian for the Iowa D. A. R. and held many other offices in the various organizations of which she was a member. At the time of her demise, Mrs. Pool was compiling a partial genealogy of the Stebbins family. She was well known to many students in her field.

Loring was very active in church affairs. He was elected a deacon when the Free Baptist Church at Waits Corners, about four miles south-east of Sherman village, was organized in 1835, and remained a deacon until his death in 1889.

Among others who settled at Waits Corners were: David and Irena Collins Stebbins, Moses and Sally Stebbins, Dexter and Eliza Stebbins, Calista Stebbins and Sylvester Stearns, Samantha Stebbins and Hiram Tibbals. Most of these folks had belonged to the Baptist Church in Conway, Mass. before they removed to Middlesex and later to Sherman.

There is a cemetery in the church yard at Waits Corners and all of the above, also many of their descendants, are buried there. The church, which was built about 88 years ago, is still used by the Baptist organization and is in good repair at this time (1940). The cemetery, though well cared for, is little used now except by descendants of the pioneer families.

CONCLUSION

In 1909, I visited Springfield, Northampton, and Deerfield, Mass., for the first time. I recall that at Springfield I found a city directory and looked up to see how many Stebbinses were listed. I found sixty-seven among which were lawyers, doctors, manufacturers, merchants, and laborers.

At Northampton, where Rowland spent part of his life, I think there were nineteen Stebbinses listed in the directory. Most of those at Springfield were descendants of Thomas who had remained at Springfield after his father had gone with his son John II to help found Northampton. At Deerfield there were about six or seven families all descendants of John III, first settler there. In 1938, I was again in Deerfield, and I only found one family living there at that time by the name of Stebbins. This shows the present shift in population to other parts of the country.

At Conway, Massachusetts, where our family lived after the Revolutionary War for some years, 1792 to about 1830, I could not learn of a single Stebbins living there now.

It has been characteristic of the Stebbins family to be pioneers and out in front in community affairs.

James McCallum, who has been superintendent of the Bridge Street Cemetery at Northampton, Mass. for nearly forty years, says many people visit that cemetery every year and inquire for the oldest date on any tombstone there and he always refers them to the grave of Rowland Stebbins, birth date 1592—oldest date he has found in the cemetery. At Waits Corners, N. Y. the oldest date in the cemetery of burial is 1835, that of David Stebbins.

It is believed that Luke Stebbins compiled and published the first genealogy in America which was a genealogy of Samuel Stebbins and his wife, Hannah, published in 1771 at Hartford, Connecticut. Only two of the original copies are in existence. In 1879, the New England Genealogical Society reprinted one hundred copies.

The next Stebbins Genealogy we have a record of is the one published by Dr. Daniel Stebbins of Northampton, Massachusetts in 1850.

George Sheldon's "History of Deerfield" also contains a genealogy of the Stebbins family in Deerfield and Conway, Massachusetts.

The Stebbins Genealogy published by Ralph Stebbins Greenlee of Chicago in 1904 was in two large volumes. He made a thorough search of the records of the Stebbinses in America at that time and he states 95% of the Stebbinses in America trace back to Rowland as their first ancestor in America. I have met many Stebbinses in other states and only found one who didn't claim descent from Rowland. This one exception was a Stebbins in the grocery business in Oelwein, Iowa. He had come from England to Iowa when a young man. He was born and reared in England and knew of no connection between himself and the Stebbinses in America.

I have all of these genealogies and recommend all who wish to study their family records further, to consult them. These genealogies may be obtained from the Goodspeed Book Store of Boston.

War records have been made brief because complete records can be obtained at any time from the War Department at Washington, D. C.

For over forty years I have been making this research and I am proud of the accomplishments of these pioneers who served faithfully, in their way, in their day, not only their God, country, but indirectly, their posterity. They were faithful and loyal to their church, to their community, and to their country.
